

PLANNING A WALT DISNEY WORLD VACATION?

TRAVEL + LEISURE

Free Online Forum with Insider Tips from the 2009 Walt Disney World Moms Panel

Celebrating an exceptional opening year, Disney Parks has launched its second consecutive Walt Disney World Moms Panel, www.disneyworldmoms.com. Upon receiving thousands of entries, the 2009 panelists – 16 parents and Disney-savvy vacation planners – will offer families free tried and true advice for planning an unforgettable Walt Disney World vacation.

This interactive online forum consists of 15 moms and one dad, who have proven their Disney knowledge and ability to field vacation-planning questions from all park-goers. Truly an eclectic group of parents – from the suburbs of New Hampshire and Louisiana to our neighbors abroad in Ottawa and England – these panelists are equipped and eager to share insights to make trips to Disney magical for every family. Guests can post questions and have them answered by the panelists.

Featuring a grandmother from Indiana who treasures celebrations at the parks to a New Jersey mom who has mastered Disney vacations with a special needs child, these Walt Disney World experts will ensure that no hidden Mickey is left undiscovered.

“While planning a Walt Disney World vacation is very exciting, it can be quite intimidating, especially to the first-time guest,” said Meg Crofton, president of Walt Disney World Resort. “Our 2009 panel has the insight and know-how to help eliminate the guesswork and enhance any Disney experience.” Families planning a Disney vacation can log on to the Walt Disney World Moms Panel at www.disneyworldmoms.com to receive valuable tips, perfected strategies and secrets from the 2009 panelists.

Online Forum has Free Insider Tips to Plan a Disney Vacation

Kathryn “Kay” Belin of Valparaiso has been recognized as a Disney-savvy vacation planner as she joins the 2009 Walt Disney World Moms Panel, www.disneyworldmoms.com. Chosen from thousands of applicants, Belin is one of 16 new parents, and the first grandparent, to sit on the interactive online forum. Belin and her fellow panelists will offer free advice and strategies to guests planning Walt Disney World vacations.

Belin’s knowledge of Disney coupled with her many visits and unique tips for navigating the parks secured her place on the second annual Walt Disney World Moms Panel. As a member she will field vacation-planning questions from park-goers looking to make the most of their Walt Disney World experience. Due to its popularity and invaluable compilation of the best and brightest Disney planning secrets for all families, the panel has extended its roster from 12 to 16 members to help field even more questions.
